Event Details:

Free Dance Workshop

Location: Studio U

Date and Time: Saturday, April 27, 2024, 12:00 PM

In this workshop, emphasis is placed on the ability to adopt Chinese bodily aesthetics: three bodily curves, the center of gravity moving close to the ground, and internal energy—Qi. You will learn how to use internal breath to control physicality and expand your movement capabilities, which will aid your artistic growth as performers and your knowledge of the Chinese traditional bodily cultures behind these movements.

Show (Free Admission)

Location: Studio H

Date and Time: Saturday, April 27, 2024, 3:00 PM

Featured Performances:

1. Becoming

Student Choreographer: Mackenzie Barnett-Mcnab

Performers: Mackenzie Barnett-Mcnab, Brea Harris, Abria Holt, Nadia Urena, Jazlyn Tan, Michaela Delaney Guthrie, Olivia Mohsen, Lily Santana, Jamie Chen, Claire Schlutt, Alicia Mears, Dyn Jeanne Marie Garcia

Composers: "Tomb" by Richard Pryn and "Horizon" by Garth Stevenson

Costume Design: Mackenzie Barnett-Mcnab

About Becoming: Becoming is about the journey of growth. The frustration, confusion, and anxiety that comes with change resulting in the acceptance of a new journey

2. Prim and Proper

Faculty Choreographers: Jillian Harris and Marie Brown

Performers: Jillian Harris and Marie Brown

Composers: Low Probability of a Hug (Siron)

Costume Design: Jillian Harris and Marie Brown

This live, multimedia dance piece interrogates female stereotypes through the metaphor of the chimera, a mythical creature composed of incongruous parts. The duet abstracts the tension within a patriarchal culture in which women must shapeshift to accommodate the expectations of those in power while struggling to maintain a sense of inner coherence. In its construction, the piece employs a new method and creation model titled R.E.A.L. (Relational Embodied Active Learning) developed by Prof. Harris as well as RE:Flex, a digital warping and morphing application. With the overturning of Roe vs. Wade, the autonomy of the female body is no longer certain, making this chimera image even more potent. Like the chimera, the "perfect woman", one who meets often conflicting societal definitions is a mythical creature.

A portion of this project was funded by a Vice Provost for the Arts Grant from Temple University, Philadelphia, PA, USA.

3. Nocturne

Faculty Choreographer: Xiang Xu

Performers: Akino Leeann Lessey, Alicia Mears, Claire Schlutt, Dyn Jeanne Marie Garcia, Esmeralda Luciano, Jazlyn Tan, Jena Barton, Jamie Chen, Karly Elizabeth Meehan, Lily Santana, Michaela Delaney Guthrie, Nadia Urena, Venrick D James, Olivia Mohsen Alsamadj, Longxuan Lian

Composers: Frederic Chopin, Schumann Schubert

Costume Design: Xiang Xu

About Nocturne: The perception of separation has long been a cornerstone of our understanding, delineating individuals from one another, matter from spirit, and humans from nature. This worldview casts us as discrete and distinct entities, existing within an objective universe governed by forces, masses, atoms, and the void. However, the profound truth lies in the fact that everything, at its core, is composed of stardust, rendering the universe a tapestry woven from the same cosmic fabric. This unity, though often elusive in our perception, is a foundational tenet of existence.

Join us for an unforgettable showcase of talent, creativity, and artistic expression.

TEMPLE DANCE DEPARTMENT

The Temple Dance Department is dedicated to cultivating a vibrant and inclusive learning atmosphere that values both artistic and scholarly excellence. Rooted in the belief that dance is a powerful mode of expression and exploration, our faculty and students engage in embodied practices that honor tradition while also pushing the boundaries of creativity and knowledge. We recognize the transformative potential of the body in motion and encourage our students to explore how dance contributes to understanding, shapes our social environments, and fosters community engagement.
