About: On July 31st, 2019 Attorney General Letitia James announced an investigation into NYCharities.org, an online fundraising platform that has failed to distribute hundreds of thousands of dollars to New York charities. The investigation, being conducted by the Attorney General's Charities Bureau, is based on more than 100 complaints from individuals and organizations. The claims of unpaid contributions range from $200 to over $100,000 (Attorney General's Press Release, July 31st, 2019, Attorney General James launches investigation into NYCharities.org). NYCharities.org opened in 2004 and offered nonprofit organizations a free online platform through which to process credit and debit card donations online. Impacted organizations include many dance companies over the past several months.

Join Dance/NYC's Executive Director Alejandra Duque Cifuentes and a panel of business and legal specialists for an open forum discussion on the current impact the NY Charities downfall might be having in the NYC dance community. We aim to offer a space wherein participants will share their experiences, ask questions, present ideas, and chart a path forward.

Any organization owed money by NY Charities is urged to contact the Attorney General's Bureau of Charities here.
