BARKIN/SELISSEN PROJECT AUDITIONS FOR MEN AND WOMEN

OCTOBER 17TH, 2010

3-7pm, by appointment

This is a PAID project

BARKIN/SELISSEN PROJECT is looking for exceptional dancers to be part of the creation of a new piece inspired by a mathematical theory called Differential Cohomology, premiering in January 2011.

Dancers must be technically strong, versatile, comfortable with improvisation, and willing to contribute creatively to this process in a dedicated and efficient manner. The ability to shift energy, focus, quality, and weight, is a plus as is proficiency in yoga, break dancing, and ballet.

Commitment begins on November 1st and rehearses 20-30 hrs/week, mostly Monday - Friday from 12 to 6 p.m., plus some weekends.

In addition, dancers will also need to be available on:

Tuesday evenings of:

November 9th

November 23rd

December 7th

December 14th

AND

Reserve January 7-15th completely.

There will be a few days off for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Dancers will be paid a competitive salary during the project, and must be able to commit to the full rehearsal process.
