Thursday, January 4, 2018

first person plural - monthly series

Company: first person plural
Location: New York, NY
Compensation: Some expenses may be compensated.

▶ Share | Print | Download

first person plural invites choreographers and movement based artists to submit work to our monthly events. Co-curated by choreographer Anneke Hansen and art historian Halston Bruce, the salon-style gatherings occur in a downtown loft the first Sunday of every month. Upcoming topics include:

Reduction (2/4); Movement, Borders, Belonging: Citizenship and Art (3/4); The Space of Women (4/1); Facing Mass Incarceration (5/6); TBD (6/3).

Please send an introductory email expressing your interest and information about the work you are interested in sharing, whether it relates to one of the upcoming topics or not. Write to: firstpersonpluralsalon@gmail.com

ABOUT:

first person plural is a new experimental conversation series intended to create a fertile and supportive space for the discussion of ideas important to our lives. Gathering together in an intimate environment, we seek to challenge and expand our understanding of the world through art, conversation and community. Each evening will open with provocations from artists, writers, scientists, and others, followed by an informal group discussion about the intersection of our theme and our presenters' work, and our own experience of the topic at hand. A light meal and wine are served. These events are held in a private space and admission is by invitation.

first person plural
New York, NY, 10002

For more information:
Anneke Hansen
firstpersonpluralsalon@gmail.com

< back

previous listing • next listing