Lila Artists is looking for musical collaborators for their upcoming show that will premier in the summer of 2020. The show is a queer imagining of a living Burlesque archive, drawing on the theater of the absurd, referencing the political climate in NYC during the AIDS epidemic, and looking toward the current political and ecological crisis as a way to consider an alternative way of moving forward.

Lila Artists is looking for 3-5 highly skilled musicians to co-create this integral part of the work, to build a musical experience alongside the other elements of the performance.

Musicians should feel comfortable improvising and interacting with other performers and audience members on stage.
