The 2023 GALLIM Moving Artist Residencies provide artists time and space to explore their creative ideas and invite them to identify what would most nurture their growth in creation, research, training, and development. The Moving Artist Residencies are process based residencies, there are no requirements to produce or showcase a finished work. The residencies are open to, but not limited to, choreographers, dance filmmakers, educators, and performers. This year's residencies will take place at a satellite studio space in NYC of similar dimensions to the Brooklyn GALLIM studios and will be equipped with a sprung marley floor.

The 2023 GALLIM Moving Artist Residency is a process-based NYC studio residency for Black, Indigenous, Asian, Pacific Islander, Hispanic, Latino/a/e, and people of global majority movement artists who are women, non-binary, transgender and gender nonconforming, ages 18-30.

The 2023 GALLIM Moving Artist Residency is designed to holistically support movement artists by offering fully-funded, safe and private space, an artist stipend, support for two mentorship sessions, and promotional support through GALLIM's communication channels. We hope for the residency to provide a sanctuary of untethered exploration for historically underrepresented moving artists of all forms.

Applications are open through Friday, November 4th.
