Artists Striving to End Poverty (ASTEP) uses the arts as a tool to empower underserved youth. Since 2001, ASTEP has partnered with over 15 community organizations and hundreds of volunteer artists around the world to provide uplifting arts education programming that inspires young people to transcend their current social conditions, strengthen their academic and social abilities, and break the cycle of poverty. Through art, ASTEP gives youth the essential life skills, dedication to teamwork, capacity for self-expression, and confidence to build on their potential. ASTEP is currently accepting applications for artists who are interested in volunteering in any of our four locations: New York, New York; Homestead, Florida; Johannesburg, South Africa; Bangalore, India. For more information about our programs and how to apply to be a volunteer, please visit our website at www.asteponline.org.
