The philosophy guiding our Company's workshops has always remained straightforward. Movement classes are designed to build technical strength and body awareness, but this is only one small aspect of how we develop as thinking dance artists. Our work is threaded together with a sense of humanity that embraces the individual as part of a larger community. These workshops are a safe haven for exploration in an environment that challenges both body and mind.

The Winter Intensive is exactly that: six intensive days that distill the philosophy of the dances we create into a concentrated shared experience. We'll explore the interweaving aspects of technique, repertory and creative investigation, and discover how that can extend far beyond our week together.

This Intensive provides a supportive community in which to discover new challenges. We are confident that the unique structures and the personal teaching approach of the Company will leave you with new ideas, answers and questions about why we do what we do. We hope you will join us.
