

December, 5-6, 2015

AGEN

Company: Natalie Johnson Dance at CPR
Venue: CPR - Center for Performance Research
Location: Brooklyn, NY

► Share | Print | Download

Tickets: $15 suggested donation/pay what you can – email natalie@nataliejohnsondance.com to reserve your seat

AGEN, coming from Middle English, is the primary root for three common English words today: "own", "against", and "anew". This piece is divided into three sections that draw upon those words, yet all share the same root. AGEN covers a broad spectrum of movement and tone, ranging from pedestrian to virtuosic, abstract to referential, irreverent to supplicative. But always in common is the root: my fascination with pain, and the transformative process that follows.

Pain is honest, universal, spans the physical and emotional boundaries, and connects all things living. Pain can be self-inflicted, oppressive, enjoyable, humorous, destructive. Pain is a great teacher and a formidable enemy. AGEN is a story of four people owning, battling, and shedding themselves, through love and pain, to become anew.

Natalie Johnson Dance at CPR
361 Manhattan Avenue
Brooklyn, NY, 11211
718.349.1210

Schedule
December 5, 2015: 7:00pm
December 6, 2015: 7:00pm

< back

previous listing • next listing