ABOUT THIS SHOW

With his Queer-Puerto-Rican Cha-Cha-Heels Shaman identity as a point of departure, choreographer Antonio Ramos explores themes related to gender diversity and 'sub-class' conflicts. Using personal stories and identities, the company creates exaggerated personas that explore the challenges, anxieties and neuroses that the process of making dance conjures. By aligning, juxtaposing and smashing these characters up against each other in an environment full of glamour and decadence, Ramos' penetrating movement vocabulary creates a shockingly hysterical world evocative of Almodóvar's most outrageous characters.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Antonio Ramos is a dancer, choreographer and certified body work practitioner from Puerto Rico whose current work has been presented at American Realness, The Center for Performance Research, Jack and Museo del Barrio. He is currently a resident artist at Gibney Dance and Dancespace Project. Ramos is the artistic director and choreographer for Antonio Ramos & the Gang Bangers.
