Financial literacy is crucial to launching and sustaining any career. But often, our early education doesn't prepare us for the "dollars and sense" reality of life. This is especially the case for artists! BREAD's fall program will address the age-old dilemma of "living the life of our dreams" vs "making money." The program is designed to provide financial education through the lens of racial inequality in underserved and marginalized communities, and integrates dance to help us move through the conversation in an embodied way.
