Creative Practice + Audience Experience with Tom Pearson

Creative Practices 2:00PM–5:00PM ET, May 11, 2023 on Zoom
Ritual and Ceremony 2:00PM–5:00PM ET, May 18, 2023 on Zoom
Designing the Senses 2:00PM–5:00PM ET, May 25, 2023 on Zoom
World-building 2:00PM–5:00PM ET, June 1, 2023 on Zoom

Spring is coming, and with it, our own opportunities to bring new ideas into the light. This series is a deep-dive into creative practice and art-making with an emphasis on generating original material that puts our audiences/participants at the center of the work we create. We will explore methods that support immersive ideation as well as other participant-centered endeavors. For four weeks, we will concentrate on different aspects of the creative process and how to build and sustain a practice that not only nurtures and causes us to thrive in our generative work but also helps us plan for creativity, hold space for it, and center it in our daily lives. A performance or art background is not required, and these gatherings are open to anyone who wishes to work, play, and learn more about creative techniques and design. Since there is a light cumulative aspect to the series, participants are encouraged to join for all four; however, a single workshop rate is available.

Zoom sessions are each 3 hours long, all on Zoom
(lecture/demonstration and prompts/discussion format)

$300 for full Series
$80 per class drop in

Subsidized rates for who need it (limited availability): $200 for full and $56 per class

SESSION DETAILS:

May 11: Creative Practices: Generative Process and Working from Self
The best pathway to making successful work is to make work that you are passionate about.

May 18: Ritual and Ceremony: Audience-Centered Experience Design
Putting the audience at the center of your work makes for engaging, personal, and one-of-a-kind journeys.

May 25: Designing the Senses: Multi-sensory Embodiment
Bringing audiences into relationship through embodied experience is a way to practice deep community-building and transformational work.

June 1: World-Building: An Iterative Approach
Taking a long view of our work and artistic trajectories sets the stage for life-long, sustainable practice.
