Being a "dance rebel" means being part of a revolution in which humans are choosing to put dance, art, and their body back in their lives, in their own unique way, in a world that can so often try to keep us disconnected.

this show is about reviving that mission within all of us through creating a platform for (re)emerging dancers to take the stage.

This show is also meant to reawaken some spark that might be dimming out within YOU. To let you in on the process (rather than just showing the final product) so that you can remember that you, too, are more than what's on the surface. You are here to create a better world by letting out more of your true self and expression.

This show is a statement that we will not be passive bystanders - we will create; we will move people, places, and things; we will dance.
