Out of Israel, now in its eighth season, celebrates Israel's 70th anniversary with a look at the "palatable intensity and adventurous physicality of these vigorous (Israeli) voices." (The New York Times). This program features a full-scale expression of the best in Israeli dance which is considered the most dynamic in the world. Included are choreographers Itzik Galili and Roy Assaf in work performed by Troy Ogilvie, a solo by dance artist Roni Chadash and DANAKA collective new works. Artistically directed and guest-curated by Dana Katz, the festival promotes cultural understanding between the artists and international audiences.
