David Dorfman Dance (DDD) has worked throughout the world for decades, combining text and movement to access personal, political, and humorous stories—blending seamlessly both literal and abstract notions of presence, equity, and agency. During this workshop, participants will move, write, and speak to their most pressing issues. DDD's intent is always to "get the whole world dancing," and so no previous dance experience is required, just a willingness to explore. If we can all move together, especially with people unfamiliar to us, we can make a more empathic world in real time.

This FREE event is General Admission, first-come first-served. Just show up!
