Class Description

Beginner Contemporary Class with expressive, dynamic movement material to build strength, balance, stamina, focus, and work on technique, movement skills, concentration, and self-awareness. With a strong emphasis on movement from the core, connecting physicality and emotionality, allowing dancers to explore and own their individual voice, take chances, and dance to their fullest.

About Lili

Lili Tewes is originally from Hamburg, Germany, and graduated from the Martha Graham School under the artistic direction of Janet Eilber, where she danced principal roles in several of Graham's ballets, including "Woman in White" in Diversion of Angels and "Pioneer Woman" in Appalachian Spring. She danced for RIOULT Dance NY, Sensedance, CES Danceworks, has performed works by Martha Graham, Merce Cunningham, Pascal Rioult, Jacquelyn Buglisi, Virginie Mécène, Henning Rübsam, and collaborated on projects with Alastair Macaulay, New York Theatre Ballet, and the Buglisi Dance Theatre. Lili was the director of the modern dance department at TANZWERK School for Ballet and Movement, served as the rehearsal director for Sensedance and CES Danceworks, and was awarded a residency at K3 Center for Choreography at Kampnagel. Her work as a choreographer was featured at Tanztheater Wuppertal create and presented at the Martha Graham Studio Theater. In New York, Lili taught at 92Y Harkness Dance Center, New York Theatre Ballet School, and was a teaching artist with the DanceREACH program. From the age of ten, Lili studied Hula under Kumu Hula Kalei'ulaokala Makekaku to later join her company in Hawai'i and toured Europe and the USA.
