Body Mapping Workshop series
Low-impact and open to all, the workshops are designed by Anabella Lenzu who has 20+ years of experience teaching students of all ages. How do our bodies become a receptacle and messenger of the multiple realities we are immersed in? The workshop challenges the participants to think about how they view bodies, using drawings to share their own stories of their bodies. Body maps are a way of storytelling, much like totems that contain symbols with different meanings but whose significance can only be understood in relation to the creator's overall story and experience and creativity! Body maps allow us to connect with emotions and life circumstances to give voice and visibility to one's identity. It's not the artwork that matters; it's the message.
