Revolutionizing Sites Through Integrative Performance: A Public Dialogue with Onye Ozuzu & amara tabor smith

Presented by Bridge Live Arts, Curated by Cherie Hill

Monday, April 3, from 6:00 - 7:30 PM PST, Online/Zoom

A conversation between choreographers Onye Ozuzu and amara tabor smith about their creative approaches to organizing movement of the body in relationship to buildings and experiences of space and time - exploring architecture as site, city as site, and community as site.

This artist talk is presented as part of Liberating Bodies, a new series curated by Cherie Hill for Bridge Live Arts featuring movement workshops and public dialogues with Black Diaspora dance artists working between the nuances of sites, sound, community, and embodiment.
