The family-friendly program, "Small Steps, tiny Revolutions" is based on a poem about a young boy and his distanced father who disapproves of his son's love of dance. The audience witnesses the transformative power of love as the father journeys into the boy's imaginary world in an attempt to understand him and rescue their relationship. The whimsical costumes and sets used in the production set the tone for this magical and touching story; it is a treat for children and families alike. The afternoon performance closes with RIOULT's powerful "Bolero" set to the music of Maurice Ravel. Please contact SmartTix to get your tickets today!
