Please join us! Indah Walsh Dance Company (IWDC) is sharing a full evening of different works, some originally created 10 years ago and some brand spankin' new creations (one of which happens to be Indah's favorite thing she's ever made). The evening will feature collaborators Lauren Kravitz and Xiao Quan as well as special guest artists. Indah Walsh Dance Company creates performance events where audience become active participants rather than passive observers. If you've attended an IWDC performance then you know you may be asked to stand, play and/or step-touch.

This show is kid-friendly, however, there is a character who wears a vampire mask, which, while intended to be comical, may frighten young children.
