This summer, American Dance Institute will premiere 5 new works at the The Kitchen. In Wilderness, Choreographer Brian Brooks will examine and amplify the living, moving body in his next piece. A sculptural installation will immerse his group's latest dance in a type of three-dimensional map, designed and constructed by Brooks with lighting designed by third time collaborator Joe Levasseur. Building upon a series of works that have stretched tension cables, fluorescent lights, and other industrial materials to surround both performers and audience, his new (untitled installation) aims to capture each passing moment as experienced by the dancers.
