PROGRAM BOOK

2021 Symposium Schedule, Tracks and Features

Dance/NYC's 2021 Symposium offered content tracks in alignment with its theme Justice. Transformation. Education. Confirmed sessions and speakers for the content tracks are included below and were announced to the public on a rolling basis. This year's symposium included several new additions to the programming.

Thematic Guide Curators

Each track will be accompanied by a thematic guide to be included in this year's digital program book curated by leading dance practitioners. These guides will feature a written essay, resource lists with related media, and reflection prompts providing deeper ways to explore the various topics to be unpacked during the Symposium.

2021 Thematic Guide Curators were:

- Jonathan Gonzalez (Justice), Multidisciplinary Artist and Educator with City University of New York
- Yanira Castro (Transformation), Independent Artist, a canary torsi
- Maura Nguyen Donohue (Education), Associate Professor, Hunter College, City University of New York

Eva Yaa Asantewaa, Senior Director of Artist Development & Curation; Editorial Director, Gibney

Streets, Dance Halls and Living Rooms:
Social Dance in Form, Function, and Practice

10:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

As physical distancing is one of the imposing paradigms of our pandemic experience, and dancing in indoor studios is not a given we are reminded that many dance forms birthed in communities of color have been solving issues of interaction in what we are now considering as alternative space. In this session we focus on social dances, the roles they have played in other key moments in history and the lessons to be learnt from these practices today. We will also discuss the barriers these forms and their practitioners have faced to be included in the 'dance world' (the recognition, resources and comradery that it often offers) and how race and ethnicity affects this experience.

Featured Speakers:

- Rodney Lopez, Principal, Rodney Eric Lopez Enterprises (moderator)
- Joti Singh, Artistic Director, Duniya Dance and Drum Company
- Michael Manswell, Artistic Director of Something Positive Inc. & Adjunct Lecturer at Lehman College
- Nicole Macotsis, Cultural Worker and Founder of Traditions in Motion

Dance to Abolition, Liberation, Decolonization, and Reparations

10:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

The social justice uprisings of 2020 have brought many justice-related movements into greater popular discourse and consideration. What do these concepts and many more mean individually and how do they relate to our work in the dance field? This session will take a deeper look, giving us an entry point to action in conversation with artists.

Featured Speakers:

- Abou Farman, Assistant Professor, New School; New Sanctuary Movement, Artspace Sanctuary; Immigrants. Dance. Arts. Task Force Member, Dance/NYC (moderator)
- Christina Dawkins, Founder of A4Abolitionist
- DeeArah Wright, Changemaker & Social Entrepreneur
- lakowi:he'ne' Oakes, Executive Director of American Indian Community House
- Jonathan González, Multidisciplinary Artist and Educator with City University of New York
- Nehemoyia Young, Movement artist + Community Organizer

Negotiations of Power in Commercial Cultural Practice

1:00 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.

How do we redefine how power is shared when it comes to commercialized dance forms that have been historically marginalized, othered, exoticized and appropriated. Four artists share their experiences and offer ways power can be redistributed to acknowledge lineage, community ownership and address material inequity.

Featured Speakers:

- Michele Byrd-McPhee, Executive Director, Ladies of Hip-Hop (LOHH) (moderator)
- Anahid Sofian, Executive Director, Anahid Sofian Studio
- Cesar Valentino, Vogue Dance Icon and Pioneer
- JaQuel Knight, Director, Creative Director, Choreographer, Image Architect
- Nelida Tirado, Artistic Director of Nelida Tirado Flamenco

101 Workshop Series: Racial Justice, Know Your Rights, and Accessibility

1:00 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.

This group of mini-workshops will offer a basic introduction to addressing accessibility for disabled people, immigrant safety and racial justice in your programming.

Facilitated by:

- Dustin Gibson, Founding Member, Harriet Tubman Collective
- Luba Cortés, Immigrant Defense Coordinator, Make the Road New York
- Nijeul X. Porter, Board Member, artEquity

Daily Debrief

2:45 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Unpack the sessions of the day with other symposium attendees. Each debrief is led by the Thematic Guide Curator for that day's track.

Facilitated by:

- Jonathan Gonzalez, Multidisciplinary Artist and Educator with City University of New York

Dance Breaks

3:45 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Keeping dance at the center of it all, the event offered 30min daily dance breaks to invigorate, educate, and connect Symposium participants.

Protecting Your Peace

This dance session will take a moment to stop ingesting trigger inducing media to focus on creating your inner sanctuary. Come dressed in your comfiest garments, prepare your space in a way that brings you calm, and be ready to get grounded with the most important person in your life...You.

Facilitated by:

- DHQ Brat, Choreographer, Dancer, Teacher, Co-Founder of Queen Moves

Keynote

Starting Again: A System Built for Us

5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

How do we build a world where dance and movement are the building blocks and where Black, Indigenous, people of color artists and disabled artists are centered and supported and where ableism is dismantled? What is the origin story of that world and how do we enact it in this present? What would have to change structurally for dance work to be understood and resourced to actually thrive?

Featured Speakers:

- Ni'Ja Whitson, Interdisciplinary Artist (moderator)
- Ahimsa Timoteo Bodhrán, Multimedia Artist, Educator, and Organizer
- Claudia Norman, Producer, Celebrate Mexico Now Festival; Co Founder, The Generators
- Kevin Gotkin, Co-Founder of the Disability/Arts/NYC Task Force and Visiting Assistant Professor, NYU

Hunter College Dance Department Performances & Keynote The Studio to Stage Pipeline: a Story of Racism, Tendus, and Black death

5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

In a dance world where studio training and professionalism are largely undergirded by eurocentric ideals and aesthetics despite genre, these invisible practices are part of a fabric that creates the conditions for ongoing violence against Black people. How do we reveal white supremacy's invisible role in studio practice and dominant dance culture and offer a pathway to anti-racist pedagogies?

Featured Speakers:

- Gregory King, Assistant Professor of Dance at Kent State University (moderator)
- Davalois Fearon, Founder and Executive and Artistic Director of Davalois Fearon Dance
- Jesse Phillips-Fein, Choreographer, Performer, and Dance Educator
- Maura Nguyen Donohue, Associate Professor, Hunter College, City University of New York
- Melanie George, Founder/Director Jazz Is... Dance Project & Associate Curator at Jacob's Pillow

Performances:

"And I Finally See..."

Celebrates women and how powerful we are. Society expects us to conform and women need to continue to support and encourage each other to push the boundaries. With the help of women this world is a better place and our presence continues to bring awareness to various issues. My work speaks directly to women to express how talented, beautiful, and powerful they are; no matter what insecurities society or we put on ourselves.. Women bring life into this world and we should be treated like the queens that we are.

Performer and Choreographer: Maiya Redding, MFA Student Hunter College Dance Department

"On/Along"

Is a piece about perseverance. During the pandemic, we have dealt with a lot of uncertainty. As a college student entering her senior year and unsure of the future for the arts, it has been difficult to remain creative and inspired. However, by continuing to practice perseverance and exploring different dance elements and using improvisation, these explorations have significantly helped Esther's choreographic process with investigating movement qualities in space to help construct a series of sequences. The piece resonated in Carolyn Adams' response to the question, "What does it take to be a dancer?". Adams responded with, "Purpose, passion, perseverance. We meet challenges and obstacles with stamina, ideas, and solutions. This is simply who we are, in service to the art we love."

Performer: Anakeiry Cruz, Student, Hunter College Dance Department

Choreographer: Esther Nozea, BA Student Hunter College Dance Department
