

OUR NEW YORK CITY DANCE

JUNIOR COMMITTEE

Apply	JComm Blog	Member Bios About
Monda	y, April 4, 2011
THE	E CENSU	S IS COMING.
By juli	askelly	► Share Print Download
Here's	the skinny and	if you'd like to help in any way, e-mail jcommresearch@dancenyc.org and let us know!
ĴCom	m's Benn Rasr	youtube.com/watch?v=362K73legcc&rel=0] nussen and Julia Kelly yammer about yaks, guerrillas, and our major research initiative—a Dance Workforce Census—with ney Skybetter of SkyNova:15.
[youtu	be=http://www	youtube.com/user/skynova15&rel=0]
		Are you ready to be counted? Subscribe to the JComm E-Monthly or friend us on Facebook so we can keep 's Dance Workforce Census will launch at the top of May. That's after you've filed your taxes, so being counted will take In fact, Lori B. took a beta version in under 7.
		roject HERE . Anyone in the field can get involved there are all sorts of ways to help. If you're interested, please email elations Manager, at jcommresearch@dancenyc.org.
		e illuminating stuff we've been reading, sharing, and discussing as we develop this research initiative. CORRECTION: the as and institutions at the episode's closing was not from the CATT letter, but rather Dance/NYC's study:
		more guerillas than institutions." ork City Dancemakers," a Dance/NYC-commissioned study, May 2007 and c	ourage to join f D. Levin, Comr	is to communicate its unique and essential influence on the City's growth and quality of life, then we must have the vision orces as a sector and develop methodologies that quantify this influence." Inissioner of the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs, "The Economic Activity of Dance in New York City," a scioned study, March 2004
"By ui	ndervaluing the	artists and their product, we are all - artists, presenters, and funders - tacitly creating an ecosystem that has as its I for by unrecognized sources from outside of the 'Arts Sector'."
		Think Tank, "Follow-up Letter to the Field: Small Steps and Current Issues" March 2011
"Over		ing environment persists, but the artists and the facilities that provide their workspace needs are showing great s Spaces, "2010 Economic Impact Survey"