Becky Radway Dance Projects (BRDP) is thrilled to be celebrating its 15th year this Fall with the premiere of its most elaborate and engaging project to date... a haunting, original dance work built inside a full-stage, steel-pipe set design. "Residue" will premiere at The Boiler, a historic factory space in Williamsburg, Brooklyn, marinating the work in a visceral industrial environment. Part acrobatic spectacle and part ghost story, "Residue" places soft, moving bodies inside a harsh, geometric landscape that is thick with memory. Performers climb and swing through this world of poles along with a roving live musician, threading together in intimate embraces and powerful locomotion. Using steel pipes, ladders, and walkways high above the ground, BRDP creates a stark and awe-inspiring visual environment for a beautifully tragic story.

Becky Radway Dance Projects (BRDP) is a NY-based modern dance company founded in 2002 to create innovative movement and powerful imagery through original dance works. The company presents vibrant performances with a goal to establish unique environments with each new production that deliver an overall visceral and aesthetic experience.
