About the Performing Workshop:

Renowned ballet teacher Kat Wildish created the Performing in New York Showcases in 2008 to give eclectic adult dancers a rare opportunity: the chance to perform real classical repertoire in a professional theater in midtown Manhattan. Small professional troupes and open class students in other dance styles join the passionate, international cast for the shows 3 times per year. Kat believes every dancer deserves the chance to achieve their dreams of performance, no matter their age or level.

Her open-level repertory workshop of twice-weekly rehearsals provides top-notch insight and coaching to professional and beginner dancers alike. Make your summer dancing dreams come true! Participation fee, which covers all rehearsals, costumes, and performance fees, must be paid in full before the first rehearsal.
