An Evening of Performance Inspired by iCollective

Performance date: Saturday, October 8th

Open Source Gallery, South Slope, Brooklyn

iCollective is an organic collaborative platform of artists, curators and scientists working in the intersection of arts, urban interventions and socially engaged projects. At Open Source Gallery this October, they will present a version of their Hypnotic Tour project that invites participants into a fictional city based on solidarity, knowledge exchange, sustainability and use value instead of price.

THE CREATORS COLLECTIVE is interested in presenting both new and previously developed works that fit the themes in this exhibition.

You can learn more about iCollective here.

FUSE

Performance date: Sunday, October 23rd

Bushwick, Brooklyn

FUSE is a pop-up event featuring collaborations between filmmakers and choreographers, performed with visual artists creating live illustrations. Our first iteration of FUSE took place in July 2015 and featured 10 works and over 30 artists. In addition to dance and film, live music and spoken word were also included in some of the collaborations. Here are some of the collaborations we featured last summer:

1. Filmmaker and choreographer collaborate to create a new work
2. A choreographer creates a new work to an already completed film
3. A filmmaker creates a new work to an already completed dance piece
4. We layer two already completed works (both dance and film)

Learn more about FUSE here.

To submit work, please send an email to submit@thecreatorscollective.org with your name, artistic discipline, two work samples (specifying if either is the work you wish to perform) and in which way you're interested in collaborating for this event (see above for examples).

Deadline to Apply: Friday, September 16th
