96B Dance Collective is seeking male dancers for an evening length performance at Center for Performance Research on March 25th and 26th 2017.

We are a dance-theater collective that harnesses elements of surrealist movement, absurd humor, and contemporary dance forms. With roots in acting and movement improvisation, the work evokes a visceral experience, where boundaries dissolve between audience and art. The intention of the company's creative process is to engage in honest collaboration and conversation. 96b creates works that are unique to various performance platforms, whether theater, film, gallery, or event spaces.

96B Presents: Something Strange and Beautiful is a premiere evening length performance comprised of 3 works: "Dreaming into Being," "The Trouble with Women," and "Fertile Void." We are seeking male dancers to collaborate with our company and perform "Fertile Void" on March 25th and 26th. Rehearsals are held on Thursday evenings and Sunday mornings at 100 Grand Dance in Soho and Chez Bushwick in Brooklyn.

Requirements:

Must have a passion for moving and performing - whether it be dance (of any style), improvisation, or acting

Must be willing to work with others openly and honestly. We are looking for someone who is ready to dive into a creative process and able to express authentically

Open to movement improvisation both solo and in a group

What we need from you:

Please send us a video sample of your work, photo (does not have to be a formal headshot, just something that reveals your personality!), and resume to 96bdance@gmail.com.

We hope to move together with you soon!
