In celebration of Black History Month, a major cable network is creating short docu-style videos featuring young people with interest and skill in various fields alongside African American experts in those fields, which include dance, fashion, food/cooking, gaming, music, science, sports and technology.

We're looking for young people, ages 9-15, based in or around NYC (within a 1-2 hour driving distance), who have legitimate skill and experience in one of the fields above and are comfortable interacting with adults on camera.

If your child fits the bill, please carefully read and fill out this submission form together:
