

Tuesday, August 10, 2021

The Wallace Foundation Encourages Eligible Arts Organizations to Apply to an Open Call & Invites Researchers to Respond to a RFP

Company: The Wallace Foundation
Location: New York , NY
Compensation: $2-$3 Million

► Share | Print | Download

Tina Gutierrez / Shutterstock.com

Now through August 20, The Wallace Foundation is seeking expressions of interest from eligible organizations via an open call for its new five-year, $53 million initiative focused on arts organizations of color and the link between community orientation, and relevance and resilience. In tandem with the open call, Wallace is seeking researchers interested in responding to a request for proposals for the first of several research projects that will be part of the initiative. The deadline for letters of intent from researchers is also August 20, 2021.

The initial cohort of organizations selected as grantees will receive five years of funding to develop and pursue individual projects, using community-oriented approaches to address strategic challenges. Grantees will also be part of a peer learning community and participate in research studies to advance knowledge in the field.

Learn about the initiative, including the eligibility criteria, application process and more, at this link.

The Wallace Foundation
New York , NY
<https://www.wallacefoundation.org/knowledge-center/pages/arts-initiative-open-call.aspx>

For more information:
The Wallace Foundation
ArtsOpenCall@wallacefoundation.org

< back

previous listing • next listing