CORA DANCE
BROOKLYN

Nikki Assanti

Cora Dance Brooklyn (CDB) provides free and pay-what-you-can recreational, pre-professional, and professional dance education programs in Red Hook, Brooklyn. CDB works in partnership with other professional and community arts-based organizations to provide personalized support to students. Cora's education programs prioritize NYCHA, Section-8, and unhoused families to ensure students who may be restricted due to financial circumstances are assured a lasting artistic community, excellent programming, and successful paths to careers in the field. No one is ever turned away from Cora's education programs based on their ability to pay. Strong candidates must possess experience in dance education, working in diverse settings that address equity, and be passionate, detail-oriented, highly-motivated collaborators with a sincere desire to work cooperatively with youth, parents, community partners, faculty, and staff.
