Edible Tales is a multimedia dance installation exploring cultural heritage, social justice and sustainability. Through a community-centered creative process, we co-create with our audiences and community members and transform food stories into impactful and authentic moveMEANT narratives - on stage, outdoors, and on films.

Edible Tales started in the thick of the Pandemic, when the call for healing and nourishment was so loud from our community. From virtual conversations about comfort food and nostalgic food memories, Edible Tales has evolved into a FOOD MOVEMENT that examines and heals our relationship with how, what and why we eat.
