How can we create art for a digital world? Sharing work on social media and digital platforms is becoming the new norm, and not just because of the pandemic. Technology is developing rapidly and it's becoming a large part of everyday life. So what does that mean for art which has been historically experienced live and in person? As a team, we have been inspired to build B. Create. To allow our community to come together and discuss the constantly transforming world we live in.

Join us at the second event in our B. Create. Symposium: Creating for a Digital World - an open discussion how we can incorporate technology into art and create for a digital world.
