CLASS DESCRIPTION

Training workshop based in the construction of physical actions. It induces the participant to move from a common language not based on dance language codes. It decodifies and destructures predetermined languages of dance. The class is a representation of control and physical intuition that creates physical, mental and emotional states parting from physicality. It guides the student to find truth in his/her own body, and enter in contact with his/her own way of moving; to assume information regarding one's intuition. The class is an experiential learning process.
