Taught by a different renowned choreographer each month, the class is designed to give students insights into choreographic compositional structures and methods of personal artistic research.

From Nothing to Something

This class is about creating something from nothing or what's at hand, collectively or individually. It is about discovery and play. Drawing on the body as a narrative architectural story both energetically and actually. It will or it might culminate in an abstract narrative or narrative abstraction. The body is the focus. Creating while dancing, playing, improvising and adding. A brief anatomical warm up addressing simple breathing, doing and listening will start the class.
