David Parker and Jeffrey Kazin present Tricia Brouk's "Committed" on their Soaking WET series

In 1989 at an Upper East Side psychiatric ward, five women and three men share their very personal stories of struggle and hope. This new book musical, with 13 original songs written by lyricist/composer, Andrew David Sotomayor, is a little "Orange is the New Black" meets "Girl Interrupted" meets "Friends." The personal stories, told through song and dance, touch on various and more than common mental illnesses. The characters are likable and very relateable. We understand them and want them to get better. The subject matter is intense, but there's no lack of humor.
