Join Pointeworks on Saturday, January 17 at New York City Center (Studio 4) for an intimate evening of creation, conversation, and community. This Pay-What-You-Can event offers guests a rare inside look at the company's NYC residency and an in-depth dialogue on the future of ballet.

Experience the creation process of Jacquelyn Long's new work and the premiere of Katie Jenkins's new score, observed up close with Pointeworks dancers. And stay for a dance-focussed discussion on the arts landscape with a curated panel of 9 female-identifying guest speakers:

Elizabeth B. Yntema (President & Founder, Dance Data Project®)
 Heather Nichols (Choreographer)
 Katie Jenkins (Composer)
 Laine Habony (Choreographer)
 Madeleine Bez (Dancer)
 Melody Mennite (Choreographer)
 Junyla Silmon (Dance Data Project®)
 Sarah Foster-Sproull (Choreographer)
 Sophie Williams (Artistic Director, Pointeworks)

This is the perfect activity for dancers, artists, and arts supporters who want to dive deeper into the storytelling that goes on behind the dancing we see on stage. Tickets start at $0.
