How to tell invisibilized stories, how to offer voice and light to these stories, stories imprinted in our bodies, is the space of intrigue and investigation behind Fragmented Shadows. The trio invokes the inaudible wounds that are archived in one's body. The work treats the body as a museum, a library, a mausoleum of memories, collective and individual, sweet and bitter. Fragmented Shadows is grounded in epigenetic and psychosomatic research, and the consideration of the body in movement as a space of healing justice work. The three performers embark upon an abstracted journey, contemplative and immersive, stimulating and evocative, mysterious and carnal. Fragmented Shadows is an exploratory probe of visceral, sensorial and emotional landscapes, which filters traumas to keep only lightness.
