Free Summer Workshop with Joanna Stone, Evolution Is Not Anthropocentric

Dance To The People invites you to join us at our Summer Works Sessions with Joanna Stone every Tuesday and Thursday for eight weeks.

The two hour session includes: contemplative dance, authentic movement, and contact improvisation, as well as a choreographic process. There will be a studio showing of the work in progress on the eighth week, available to those who can commit to a majority of sessions.

"Evolution is not Anthropocentric" shows how artists are seeking positive actions to change the way humans relate to their ecosystem, and through dance establish new movement values that encourage ecological balance.

Meeting every Tuesday and Thursday, 9-11am.

July 2 through July 23 will be outdoors. (July 2nd Meeting point: Brooklyn Library at Prospect Park)

July 28- August 20 at The Woods Cooperative, 1826 Palmetto St, Ridgewood, NY, 11385.

Sessions are FREE/Donations Appreciated
