Class Description:

The YC's classes are an accumulation of movement integration, sensation awareness, and strength building, ending with material from the company repertoire. Leading in and out of various states of movement, the class focuses on qualitative and dynamic research in the body. Participants will push toward physical exhaustion and find balance within technique. Working with various improvisational practices, the class touches technical forms with a heightened sense of the self. We will dialogue movement vocabularies from The YC's rep to achieve a communicative body. This workshop is intended for intermediate to professional level dancers.

Experience a spiritual unraveling of romantic decay with the New York premiere of The Sun Still Burns Here, which blends contemporary dance and live, soul-baring pop-rock. The combination of Perfume Genius's "glorious, inventive, shape-shifting music" (The Guardian) with the exacting craft and raw potency of Kate Wallich's movement will "undeniably lure you and immerse you somewhere far from the workaday world" (The Seattle Times). Wallich, who has been named inDance Magazine's "25 to Watch," brings her Seattle-based troupe The YC to The Joyce for the first time.
