Offering older adults experiences as both performers and audience members, Movement SpeaksA lets them build dance from the stories of their lives. Led by dance artist Naomi Goldberg Haas with her professional company, Dances For A Variable Population (DVP), the 10-week dance program of workshops and a performance celebrates wellness, community and the joys of dance for adults of all ages on the Upper West Side, in Harlem and in Chelsea. Admission to the 75-minute workshops and performance program is free and open to the public. Participants in the workshops should wear comfortable clothing. There is no obligation for performance. Participants may choose to enjoy the benefits of movement, exercise and expression with or without performance. For more information, please call (347) 683-2691.
