CONTRIBUTE TO MY FUNDRAISER

THE PROCEEDS FROM THIS WORKSHOP WILL SUPPORT MY JUNTOS PROJECT IN OAXACA, MEXICO.

My goal for this project is to use dance to build a community where young women live free from the fears of sexual harassment. I have witnessed first hand the positive effects dance can have on people who have experienced violence: it allows for bodily autonomy and for individuals to feel safe in their bodies. My classes and curriculum will foster confidence, social connections and physical strength within the communities of women I will work with.

Nir Areli

Representing an organisation named JUNTOS collective which uses dance to break boundaries, I will be hosting a workshop with Adam Barruch to fundraise for my capsone project where I will be teaching dance at women's safety centers in Oaxaca, Mexico. The details for the workshop are as follows:

The class will be held on:
MONDAY APRIL 29TH
7:00PM-8:30PM at The Ailey School.

and be taught by the incredible Adam Barruch!

His movement explores the complex coordination between forceful initiations, speed and the retention of a supple and resonant expressivity.

This masterclass is especially unique because we will be exploring ideas of religion, gender and sexuality within dance. We will draw on the ideas of how some dance is used to tell stories of mythology using gestures and how the relationship between gender and sexuality is of no more importance when playing roles of gods and goddesses.

The class is $15 at the door and is a fundraiser for my JUNTOS Ambassador project which seeks to expose women in Oaxaca, Mexico who have been victims of domestic violence and/or mistreatment to a month-long education in dance that aims to empower them through movement and helps them expand the limitations of their bodies. Dance allows people to use their bodies as tools that can foster physical strength, social connections and creativity in an environment of fun, positivity, and enjoyment. This, in stark contrast to what they have previously been through, will remind them that their body is their own and allow them to make independent choices. A donation of $10 can cover my expenses for one entire day in Oaxaca including travel to and from La Casa de La Niña and DIF - Atención a mujeres both of which are safe homes that I will be teaching at. A donation of $50 can provide costumes for all of the women and girls for a final performance.

Your presence will not only help sustain my JUNTOS Ambassador project but will also allow artists to meet in one room and explore movement! Adam is a gem of a person and there is so much to learn from him! It is by first come first serve only!
