How are you or your institution moving forward and responding to the needs of the next generation of artists, educators, and innovators in pedagogy, practice, and preparation for a career?

Join the conversation in January 2020 and be part of the inaugural symposium designed for dance professionals in higher education. Moving Forward: The 2020 American Dance Platform Symposium presented by The Joyce Theater, offers the opportunity for faculty and graduate students in dance education and performance to engage in discourse on: Defining & Advancing Diversity in Higher Education Dance Programs; and Envisioning Dance in Digital Space.

The symposium package includes tickets to witness six American dance companies appearing at the celebrated American Dance Platform; attend dance workshops, receptions, networking at the Dance/USA forums at APAP, and more. Submit your application to be part of the intimate consortium of key leaders from around the country willing to have honest discussions. Interested in presenting topic-related research or papers? See www.joyce.org/movingforward for all the details. Space is limited and applications are due by September 30, 2019.
