Workshop Description

Join Christie Partelow and Gregory Lau in a special two and a half hour Intensive: two world renowned artists melding their practices together across the world, from Holland to New York City. The workshop will deepen the mental and physical relationship through meditation, improvisation, and a culminating creative process of contemporary phrase work.

The class will begin with Somatic Meditation, which connects to the body as the foundation, the path, and the fruition of one's practice. Traditionally found in the more esoteric traditions of Asia, Somatic Meditation provides a foundation into understanding the language of one's Soma. Soma is not just one's physical body, but the entire neurological network within. The practice will deepen one's relationship to tension and awareness- diving into one's soma through meditation to unlock deep physical and neurological tensions to arrive at a clear state of embodiment.

Following the meditation, the class will move into preparing the body through pilates-based functional and healthy patterning to create a malleable structure of one's system. Linking the mental and physical to be able to come into activation, embodying a deep level of trust in the capacity for freedom.

This Intensive will culminate in a creative process with phrase work that generates itself from imagery while maintaining an individual channel for expression, utilizing poetic language to engage in a multitude of impulses.
