On Feb 26 at St. Paul's Upstairs Theater in Brooklyn, NY, Borne Dance Company will host a donation based eating disorder awareness benefit show. In a presentation that can be described as interactive therapy, "Reclaim" brings the artist's healing process to their audience. Borne Dance Company will gather a collective of musicians and movers of varying dynamics for an evening of artistic expression and inspiration. In the pursuit of art appreciation in all forms, the evening will include original works of art from the realms of music, literature and visual art. In the spirit and belief that art should be made accessible to everyone in our communities, admission will be donation-based. Along with original art, the show will have handouts and educational information on eating disorders and where to find help. All donations made at the box office will go back to the National Eating Disorders Association.
