Entrance 53A Chambers

The Playground NYC allows dancers to experience various choreographic styles and ideas, engage with a new community of dancers, and gather resourceful information and inspiration from the array of choreographers involved. In turn, established choreographers are paid for their creative investigations, are given free space to explore new movement with professional dancers, and are provided with the opportunity to establish relationships with new dancers and fellow choreographers.

BIO:

Omri Drumlevich, born and raised next to Jerusalem, Israel, attended Jerusalem Academy for Music and Dance High School. He joined Batsheva Ensemble in 2010 and shortly after began teaching Gaga. In 2012 Omri joined the Batsheva Dance Company. As a dancer in the company, he produced and created for the annual "Batsheva Dancers Create" project. While dancing for Batsheva he started creating independently and collaborated with different artists on dance performances, immersive events, installations, music videos and short films. In 2017 Omri departed the company and is currently traveling around the world creating, filming, holding workshops and teaching Gaga and Ohad Naharin's repertoire.
